Q: Laravel 5.1 collection mapper error I'm learning laravel 5.1 and I got this problem, when I'm building a query. class Post extends Model { protected $table = 'post'; public function category(){ return $this->belongsTo('App\Category'); } public function tags(){ return $this->hasMany('App\Tag'); } } My relationships looks like this. and I'm trying to get all the tags and post from category using $post->tags->first() but I got this error I tried to clear the cache and clear my database but still getting the same error. I use postgresql as DB and my composer.json file looks like this { "require": { "laravel/framework": "5.1.", "illuminate/database": "5.1." }, "autoload": { "classmap": ["database"], "psr-4": { "App\\": "app/" } }, "minimum-stability": "dev", "prefer-stable": true } and my routes.php file looks like this Route::group(['prefix' => 'pages'], function () { Route::get('/', 'PagesController@index'); Route::get('/category/{category}', 'PagesController@show'); Route::get('/category/{category}/{tag}', 'PagesController@show'); Route::get('/', 'PagesController@show'); Route::post('/', 'PagesController@create'); Route::put('/{category}/post

Q: Restrict operator = depending on property of object I have a class with a get operator = that takes a PropertyInfo. The PropertyInfo is a property of the class, but I have to add a check to see if the PropertyInfo is null before using the = operator. How can I do this? A: In addition to your obvious get, you could also define a set. If you have a blank one, then you can override it when you don't want to, otherwise, it's the same. Something like: public string MyProperty = String.Empty; public String MyProperty { get { return String.Empty; } set { if(value == String.Empty) throw new SomeException(); MyProperty = value; } } So if you explicitly set it to some value, the property won't be changed, it'll just be stored in the instance. If you don't, then it'll default to an empty string, but if you can throw an exception, that's usually the right thing to do for some operations.

Q: Python distribute and how to install I am trying to learn how to use distribute in a simple python project. My project uses a standard command line application, and I want to let people be able to install it using python setup.py install This should work on ubuntu. I have installed distribute using sudo apt-get install python-distribute But now how can I actually use it? A: $ sudo pip install distribute $ python -m distribute How it works? So, take the python -m install, which stands for Main package. It's the same command as you'd use in the terminal to install a library package. Distribute package Once you've got an application that has a setup.py (which it needs for python setup.py install), and want to use distribute then, as with any other package, it's installable using pip. sudo pip install distribute A: $ sudo apt-get install python-set
