The lawmakers are arguing that Tillerson, along with other administration officials, have consistently put U.S. relations with Ukraine in jeopardy by disparaging the State Department's diplomatic efforts to end the war with Russia in the country's eastern regions, the sources said. The lawmakers believe that Tillerson is purposely preventing key diplomats from Ukraine from being appointed to key positions, the sources said. ADVERTISEMENT The lawmakers are also working on legislation to further aid Ukraine, according to one source. "The State Department is understaffed and under-resourced," said Rep. Ilhan Omar (D-Minn.), one of the lawmakers involved in the effort. "This undermines the best chance of stabilizing the situation in Ukraine," she added. The effort comes as Republicans and Democrats fight to confirm Tillerson, the former chief executive of ExxonMobil, to be the secretary of State.
