Title: Eassos PartitionGuru 6.0 Professional, Size: 3.5 MB, MD5: a1ddc0ff5f8b5ea0ebe155e7fd3b8201Comparative efficacy of ritonavir and didanosine against human immunodeficiency virus type 1-infected cells in vitro. Ritonavir (RTV) and didanosine (DDI) are potent antiviral agents currently being investigated for the treatment of human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) infection. Because these agents inhibit the replication of HIV, they may be expected to have a synergistic effect. Therefore, to determine whether the combination of DDI and RTV is more effective against HIV than DDI alone, we compared the antiviral activities of DDI and RTV against the HIV-1-infected C8166 T-cell line. RTV showed a moderate dose-dependent antiviral effect with an EC(50) of 8.7 ng/ml (95% confidence intervals [CI], 2.4-27.4 ng/ml) and an EC(90) of 130 ng/ml (95% CI, 75.5-222.7 ng/ml). DDI showed a dose-dependent antiviral activity with an EC(50) of 49.0 ng/ml (95% CI, 20.7-109.0 ng/ml) and an EC(90) of 1,120 ng/ml (95% CI, 894.0-1,572.0 ng/ml). Combination of RTV and DDI produced a synergistic antiviral effect with significantly reduced concentrations of RTV and DDI. Furthermore, combining the antiviral agents caused additional toxicity in C8166 cells. An examination of clinical factors which may influence differential diagnosis in the assessment of acute syncope. The diagnosis of an acute syncope is based on a combination of diagnostic criteria. Field of the Invention The invention relates to a double-sided surface acoustic wave filter (SAW filter) used in transmitting and receiving circuits of, for example, a cordless telephone, and more particularly, to a surface acoustic wave filter suitable for rapid and accurate setting of passband characteristics to reduce power consumption. 2. Description of the Related Art In recent years, in a cordless telephone, a transceiver with both transmitting and receiving functions has been installed in a main body such as a hand set, and the installation of a filter or a duplexer for performing both the transmitting and receiving functions in the transceiver has been considered. The filter used in the transceiver of the cordless telephone is required to have a band of two frequency bands for transmitting and receiving signals. As a filter meeting such a requirement, a SAW filter has been used. In this case, a filter having desired characteristics can be realized by setting, for example, the opening of a through-hole provided in an interdigital electrode, as described in Japanese Patent Laid-Open Publication No. 2001-293396. However, such a conventional S
