The development team were mindful of updating FIFA so the game could support all of the changes coming in the last few years, including the new rules and players' new attributes. There are numerous new gameplay mechanics across the game, including the new Player Impact Engine, player collisions and a revamped injury system. "If you go back to FIFA 12, the whole aim of FIFA was to make it reflect the best football in the world," EA Sports development director Craig Atkinson told Eurogamer. "We have been working on this project for the last three years, and we know what we want the game to be. We know what we want it to represent. So what's fascinating about what we're doing now is creating a game that feels like it really does represent the best of football on the planet. "We have to think in a new way - it's about watching football as football. Look at Pelé who's been doing it since 1958. He just takes football, watches football and thinks about football. We're all just watching football and trying to think how it plays. And that's what we've done." "We want to change the way you play football" "We want to change the way you play football, we want to bring new ways of thinking about football. We also wanted to think differently about the way we record the game. So we spent a lot of time analysing the games that we love playing

- real football - that has a lot of attributes. "We analysed what makes football so great, and we wanted to change the way we record the game. So we made our very own football suits in a sense, but we put the functionality and technology of the suits in FIFA, and then added the coaches and the physical trainers to it, so that players could be recording from all angles." Above: FIFA 19 and FIFA 20 players sit on the sidelines, speaking to Eurogamer. Below: FIFA 20 players running up to the crowd to take on a singing opponent. The recording process allows for a huge amount of data to be collected about players' movements, so that everything from ball trajectories and collision data can be tracked and analysed in depth. "One of the great things about football, the great thing about watching a football game, is its improvisation," Atkinson said. "And Experience manager and player modes, along with FIFA Ultimate Team have been expanded to allow users to own a complete team. Utilising transfer market functionality to build the best squad from the best players in the world, players will be able to bring all of their famous players together from clubs across the globe to create the ultimate team. New for FIFA 22 is Player Impact Engine which will be used to expand all player attributes. Dynamic Tactics will adapt to the opposition, giving managers more ways to outwit and outmuscle the opposition and earn FUT rewards. New tactics playmaker moves like the off-the-ball short passes, turning, crosses, and more. A new sub-staging system allows managers to outsmart the opposition even further with overloads and planned counters. What is FIFA Ultimate Team? FIFA Ultimate Team is a popular game mode for FIFA series that revolves around building a real football team made up of a mix of real and fictional players. Players can collect badges representing their achievements in various challenges that the team takes part in throughout a set number of matches, usually two, three, or four in number, and specific FIFA challenges. FIFA Ultimate Team Manger Packs are available to buy and contain a number of badges from the aforementioned challenges, along with some branded player items. A manager pack usually costs £. In-game packs are limited and often sold out within minutes of their release so buying packs at a reasonable price is the best way to ensure that you have all of the badges you need. As well as all the challenges, the pack contains a number of FIFA Ultimate Team coins or FIFA points, depending on how much the pack costs. Coins are used to buy player cards and points are used to buy packs. Players are usually priced at around £ to ££ for a single player card in a pack. Players who have played against you during your career will appear in a pack, and you can earn coins by playing against those players in online friendlies. References

FIFA is the leading football videogame series, and the new FIFA 22 game is no exception. While last year's FIFA 21 was a great game, this new FIFA includes thousands of new official player animations and more precise ball physics. This year's FIFA is also an important milestone for EA SPORTS, as it is our 20th anniversary year. It marks 20 years of FIFA, and I'm sure it will be a great game that fans will enjoy playing for years to come. FIFA Ultimate Team Returning FIFA Ultimate Team (FUT) provides an exciting way to build and play your own custom-made team from any player in the game. This year, you'll be able to use FUT to develop your ultimate team of players: create your dream FUT squad, unlock boosts and new skills, and compete in weekly tournaments. For the first time, FIFA Ultimate Team is also accessible from within single-player modes, including Career Mode and Online Seasons, so you can continue your management from the unique perspective of the stadium you play in. Career Mode There are many ways to play Career Mode, and as you play in the new game modes, you'll have the chance to earn rewards to improve your player and transfer to other modes. Career Mode will also be more flexible for you to play and adapt to your favorite type of play, whether it's the fast paced action of Quick Play, the skill-based tactics of FIFA Street, or the detailed management of Manager Mode. In Career Mode you'll build your team of managers from scratch, including scouting to find the best young players for the team. You'll be able to join a club as a high-potential manager and work your way up the ranks as you earn experience and compete against other club managers. You'll also have the opportunity to save your progress through EA Sports FIFA Manager, an app you can download from the App Store, Google Play, and Amazon Appstore. This will make your progress as well as your manager's team, including the stats, formation, and shots taken from the game's Casual Match Mode, easily accessible. Rivals The new Rivals Mode allows you to compete against friends and other players to become the team leader in a game of 7 vs. 7, or 2 vs. 2 in a fast-paced 8-vs-8 match. You can
